JACK RAMSAY

Ramsay continues to rank No. 1 among active NBA coaches in regular season victories with 655. His closest competitors are Gene Shue of Washington with 650 and Dick Motta of Dallas with 622.

Both are retired.

Ramsay last season guided Portland to a 46-36 regular-season record — third-best in the club's history.

In his first seven seasons with Portland, Ramsay has directed the Blazers to 323 victories and 251 defeats for a winning percentage of .563.

Ramsay directed the Blazers into the playoffs last season for the sixth time in seven seasons.

Only Los Angeles, Philadelphia and San Antonio have made more playoff appearances than the Trail Blazers in those seven seasons.

Going back to his coaching days in Buffalo, Ramsay has guided teams to the playoffs in nine of the last 10 seasons.

No other coach in the National Basketball Association can make that statement.

Ramsay, of course, coached Portland to the world's championship in 1977, and to the best regular-season record in the league in 1978.

Before joining the professional ranks, Ramsay coached for 11 seasons at St. Joseph's in Philadelphia. His teams won 234 and lost 72 for a winning percentage of .765.

A 1949 graduate of St. Joseph's, where he was team captain as a senior, Ramsay coached his alma mater from 1955-56 through 1965-66. In college, he led his clubs to 10 major post-season tournaments.

Ramsay is married and he and his wife, Jean, have three daughters and two sons.

Ramsay is a strong advocate, to put it mildly, of physical fitness. And he is a leader by example.

Every day of his life Ramsay rides a bicycle or swims or runs or lifts weights.

Often he does a combination of two or more.

But Ramsay says everyone, athlete or not, should be fit.

"If the average person is physically fit," he says, "he is going to feel better, do his job better, communicate with people better. It's going to help in all ways. It's important that the average person eats right, exercises right and gets enough rest."

And Ramsay leads by example.

HARRY GLICKMAN

The latest official population of the state of Oregon was 2,656,185.

So what does that have to do with Harry Glickman, executive vice president of the Portland Trail Blazers?

Well, if Glickman were to say he was planning a sports event that would draw 2,656,185 fans, you might give him a strange look.

Yet,over the years, Glickman has directed and promoted events that have drawn four times the state's population.

The Trail Blazers are closing in on the six million mark — fastest team in NBA history to approach that figure.

And Glickman, the man most responsible for bringing the Trail Blazers to Oregon in 1970, is hoping to start the 1983-84 season with the club's 272nd consecutive sellout in regular season and playoff action.

That's easily an all-time NBA record.

But Glickman also was founder and president of the Portland Buckaroos of the now defunct Western Hockey League.

In 13 seasons, the Buckaroos drew more than 3,000,000 fans.

They led the nation in hockey attendance — outside the then tightly-knit six teams of the National Hockey League.

In one season, 1964-65, the minor league Buckaroos were outdrawing the world champions of basketball, the Boston Celtics.

Now throw in another million or two fans who watched professional football exhibitions promoted by Glickman, who turned out for boxing matches he promoted in the days when the sport was really big in Oregon, who jammed old arenas and later Memorial Coliseum for the Harlem Globetrotters, another promotion of Glickman.

Those pro football exhibitions in the 1950s and 1960s made Portland the professional football exhibition capital of the world — outside the league cities of the NFL.

Exhibitions in Portland drew an average of 25,000 a game in an era in which exhibitions in other cities frequently were in the 5,000 or 10,000 class.

The first Sports Illustrated reporter who interviewed Glickman after the Trail Blazers arrived in 1970 asked him this question:

"What do you think you know about basketball?"

Glickman's answer was to the point.

"I don't think I know a lot about Basketball," he said. "But I think I know how to put people in seats."

His record speaks for itself.

Glickman's background is all Oregon except for three years in Europe as a sergeant in an armored infantry battalion during World War II.

He was born in Portland where he attended Lincoln High School and was a member of the varsity basketball team, a player who once hit five out of five from the court against Grant High School.

He is a 1948 graduate of the University of Oregon where, even in his undergraduate days, he was sports publicity director.

Those were the days of Oregon's Cotton Bowl team with the late Norm Van Brocklin, a close personal friend of Glickman.

Glickman actually planned on a sports writing career after graduation from college.

But there were no openings.

So he moved into sports publicity, free-lance writing and then sports promotions.

Glickman and his wife, Joanne, have two daughters, Lynn and Jennifer, and a son, Marshall.

Farmers cuts rates on auto insurance for drivers between 30 and 60

We have rates 30% under standard rates for drivers between the ages of 30 and 60.

There's a good reason for this. Farmers knows that these drivers tend to be safer and more careful on the highway. You're the drivers who have fewer accidents. That's why Farmers created our 30/60 package auto policy. If you qualify, you could save substantially on your premiums.

Farmers Insurance Group is working constantly to keep the costs of insurance down, and the amount of protection up. And this 30/60 package auto policy is one way we do it.

STU INMAN

Officially, the Portland Trail Blazers scored 8,808 points during the 1982-83 National Basketball Association season.

But if you look at it another way, Trail Blazers actually scored a total of 16,520 points last season.

The other 7,712 points were collected by 13 Portland draft choices who were playing with other NBA teams last year.

It's all a tribute to the sharpness of Stu Inman, Portland's general manager and chief architect of the team's college draft for 14 years.

For one reason or another, these players no longer are with Portland — Johnny Davis, Kelvin Ransey, T.R. Dunn, Tom Owens, Ron Brewer, Wally Walker, Major Jones, Clay Johnson, Mickey Johnson, Clemon Johnson, Bill Walton, Lionel Hollins and Bob Gross.

But all were draft choices of the Blazers and all played in the league in 1982-83.

Over the years Inman has made some incredible drafts — Larry Steele in the third round, Lloyd Neal in the third round, T.R. Dunn in the third round.

And that's just scratching the surface.

The 1972 draft was not the best in history for quality. But it was astounding in one aspect.

The first five players selected all played in the NBA — Larue Martin, Bob Davis, Dave Twardzik, Ollie Johnson and Lloyd Neal.

It is typical, perhaps, that the Portland NBA champions of 1977 had eight draft choices, two free agents, one player acquired in a trade and only one outright purchase.

And Inman certainly got off on the right foot in drafting.

His first choice for Portland in 1970 was Geoff Petrie of Princeton. And Petrie wound up sharing Rookie of the Year honors in the NBA with Dave Cowens of Boston.

Inman's first pick in 1971 was Sidney Wicks — who won Rookie of the Year honors.

And almost by accident.

When an NBA franchise was granted to Portland in February of 1970, there were only a couple of months to put together Portland's first draft and the college season was almost over.

Inman came highly recommended and signed on, really as a temporary scout.

Four of Inman's first draft choices made the club. Two years later Inman was named a Portland vice president. And he's still around.

Inman is a 1950 graduate of San Jose State, where he played basketball as a 6-5 center.

In fact, he's still the school's all-time scoring champion — a remarkable accomplishment considering that scores were much lower in that era.

(Yes, he also holds the San Jose State all-time record for personal fouls.)

The Spartans were tough, too, in Inman's undergraduate days, posting records of 19-9, 23-9, 22-12 and 21-7 for an overall record of 85-37.

Later Inman was to coach San Jose State from 1957 through 1966.

Inman is a member of the school's Sports Hall of Fame and recently was elected to the Fresno County Hall of Fame, too.

Inman also is an old hand at international basketball clinics, is well known in Europe, the Orient and Australia.

Inman and his wife, Elinor, have four daughters — Nancy, Sandy, Janice and Carol — and a son, David.

MORRIS (BUCKY) BUCKWALTER

And it all dates back to 1952 when a 6-2 forward named Buckwalter won all-state honors with the LaGrande Tigers of the Blue Mountain Conference in eastern Oregon.

Buckwalter then was a varsity regular for three seasons at University of Utah where he led his team in scoring as a sophomore. Buckwalter was all-conference in his final two seasons when Utah twice was eliminated in the NCAA playoffs by eventual national champion San Francisco in the days of Bill Russell.

After serving as an assistant for eight seasons at Utah, Buckwalter took over as head coach at Seattle University in 1967-68 and in five seasons posted a sparkling record of 79 victories and 49 defeats for a winning percentage of .617.

In the professional ranks, Buckwalter joined the Seattle SuperSonics as an assistant coach in 1972-73. When Tom Nissalke was fired in January of 1973, Buckwalter took over as head coach for the rest of the season.

In 1973-74 he was assistant general manager to Bill Russell with the SuperSonics.

And in 1974-75 he coached Utah's Stars in the American Basketball Association. That was the season when a youngster named Moses Malone turned professional with Utah.

Buckwalter also coached the Fresno Stars of the Western Basketball Association for a year before joining Portland as an assistant.

Yes, Buckwalter has been around the basketball block.

Buckwalter and his wife, Paula, live in east Multnomah county with a basketball-playing son, 6-6 Bryan, who attends Reynolds High School.

"I hope he keeps growing," says Buckwalter. "If we can't draft a center, maybe we can raise one."

"I think the combination has worked well," he said, "because I was able to maintain continuity with the team and that is important."

Buckwalter sees vast changes in NBA scouting since he started.

"It's very rare to scout a college game alone anymore," he says. "And there are some games where maybe half the NBA is represented."

And the days are gone when scouts looked at a player only once and then asked the coach if the youngster was a good person before drafting him.

"Anyone you are looking at to draft in the early rounds, you have to look at four or five times to make sure what kind of a player you're getting. Off the basis of one or two games, you could be fooled pretty easily."

"And we do an awful lot of background investigation on the kid," Buckwalter adds. "We'll check all the way back into high school. What kind of student has he been? What about his family background? So many things."

RICK ADELMAN

When Rick Adelman was named as a new Portland assistant coach, he certainly needed no introduction to the Trail Blazers.

Adelman, a 6-1 guard in his playing days, was selected by Portland in the expansion draft of 1970 and was an original Trail Blazer.

In 1971 he was named Portland's first team captain (there was no captain in the first season of 1970-71), and he was the cover subject on Portland's first press guide.

Overall, Adelman played seven National Basketball Association seasons, three with the Trail Blazers.

Over the last six seasons he coached Chemeketa Junior College in Salem to a record of 141 victories and 39 defeats.

In naming Adelman as an assistant, Coach Jack Ramsay said, "I liked him as a player because he played a thinking game."

"And that's what you need a lot of in coaching," said Ramsay. "He has been productive and creative with his teams."

"I think getting an assistant with head coaching experience is very important," Ramsay added. "I think it also is very important to have someone who played in the NBA. It is hard to get both of these. We got both in Rick."

Adelman said he looked at three things in considering an assistant's job in professional basketball.

"I wanted the head coaching job to be very stable," he said. "I wanted the organization to be solid. And the area where the team is located is important to me. All of these situations were favorable in Portland."

Adelman is unbeaten as an NBA coach. When Rolland Todd was ejected from a game in Portland's first season, Adelman took over and won.

In three seasons with Portland, 1970-71 through 1972-73, Adelman played in 237 games, averaged 9.8 points and 4.6 assists a game, shot .424 from the floor and .731 from the foul line.

Adelman set what then was a Portland season record for assists in leading the club with 413 and a 5.2 average in 1971-72. He still holds Portland's all-time record for assists in a single game, 17, earned against Cleveland on Nov. 19, 1971.

In seven NBA seasons with San Diego (drafted by the Rockets in the seventh round), Portland, Chicago, New Orleans and Kansas City, Adelman played in 462 regular-season games, scoring 3,579 points for a 7.7 average, earned 1,606 assists for a 3.5 average and shot .415 from the floor and .713 from the foul line.

Adelman is a product of southern California. He was born in Lynwood on June 16, 1964, attended St. Pius X high school in Downey and at Loyola scored 1,415 points (an 18.6 average) for an all-time school record.

After retiring from the NBA, Adelman returned to Loyola to earn a master's degree in history and then worked for a year with Converse in southern California before accepting a head coaching job at Chemeketa in 1977.

Adelman and his wife, Mary Kay, have two daughters, Kathryn Mary, 12, and Laura, 7, and two sons, R.J. (for Richard Jared), 10, and David Leonard, 2.

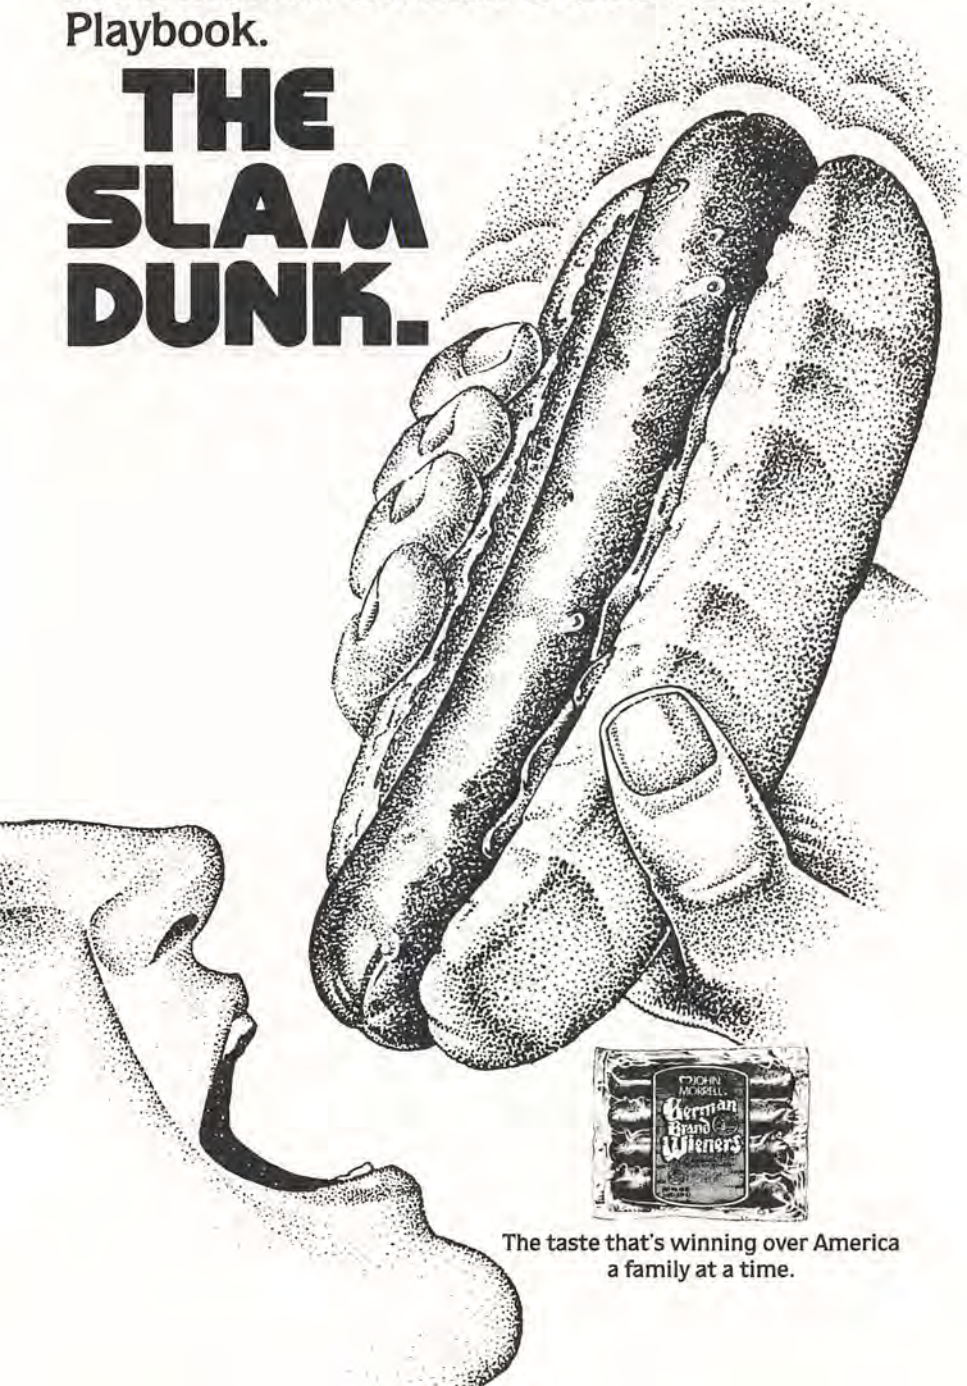
THE SLAM DUNK.



The taste that's winning over America
a family at a time.

RON CULP

On the night of Nov.26,1982,Ron Culp celebrated his 1000th game as a trainer in the National Basketball Association.

Well, celebrate isn't exactly the right word. In fact,it was a lousy night. The Portland Trail Blazers lost in overtime to Detroit, 118-132. That's not so bad. But the Blazers were thumped, 3-17, in the overtime period itself.

Still, 1,000 games is quite a milestone for Culp, now in his 14th NBA season and his 10th with the Trail Blazers.

Has he ever missed a game?

"One," said Culp. "I had some business to attend to and didn't fly with the team to Oakland. When I did fly, I was fogged in at the Los Angeles airport."

Only five other trainers have been in the league since the fall of 1970 when Culp started with the Cleveland Cavaliers.

Jack Curran was with the Seattle SuperSonics in 1970-71 and now is with the Los Angeles Lakers.

Culp is a 1968 graduate of Bowling Green State University. He earned a master's degree at the same school and has done graduate work in physical therapy at Case Western Reserve University.

Before joining the Cavaliers, where he was trainer for four seasons, Culp was head trainer at Baldwin-Wallace College in Ohio. And while in Cleveland, he also was trainer for the World Tennis team, the Cleveland Nets.

In the off-season in Portland, Culp was trainer for four and one-half seasons for the Portland Timbers of the North American Soccer League.

Culp's wife, Marilyn, works for the district attorney's office in Portland and the couple has a daughter, Amanda.

The Portland trainer believes the biggest single change in the NBA since he started with the league is "in the athlete himself."

"Today's athlete is considerably more intelligent, more aware of himself mentally and physically," says Culp. "He is more sophisticated along the lines of caring for himself and his own physical well being."

"I think this has led to the general public being interested in good conditioning and physical fitness, too," says Culp.

"Twelve years ago, if you had talked to someone about diet, you just got a blank expression," says Culp. "Now rookies ask me about having too much protein, or about food supplements. That just didn't happen 12 years ago."

And Culp adds:

"There are very few of what I call soda and potato chip athletes any more."

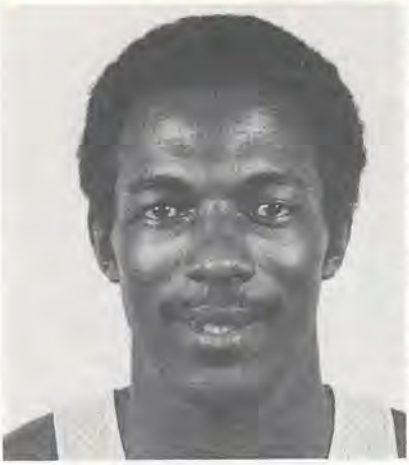
CLYDE DREXLER



College: Houston '83 — Height: 6-7 — Weight: 210 — Position: Forward — Birthdate: June 22, 1962 — Birthplace: New Orleans, LA — High School: Ross S. Sterling — Residence: Houston, TX — How Acquired: Drafted in 1983, 1st round, 13th selection

COLLEGE CAREER — In three seasons at University of Houston, Drexler averaged 14.4 points and 9.9 rebounds a game . . . he averaged 15.9 points a game as a junior . . . he passed up his senior season . . ."It was a hard decision to leave Houston without a national championship." said Drexler, "but after two very hard years I felt I was ready to move up to something else" . . .

Drexler combined with Larry Micheaux and Akeem Abdul-Olajuwon to form the Phi Slamma Jamma front line that led the Cougars to their second straight trip to the Final Four in the NCAA playoffs . . .

Drexler was the first Houston player to score 1,000 points, snag 900 rebounds and earn 300 assists in a career . . . he also finished as Houston's career record holder in steals with 268 . . . Drexler was particularly brilliant in the 1982 NCAA playoffs . . . he averaged 16 points, 8.2 rebounds, 2 assists and 3 steals and shot 59 per cent from the floor . . .

Drexler was voted Newcomer of the Year in the Southwest Conference in 1981 . . . he was the second-leading rebounder in the conference in both his freshman and sophomore seasons . . . he was named Houston's Most Valuable Player as a sophomore . . . in his junior season he was named Southwest Conference Player of the Year and won first-team All America honors on the United States Basketball Writers Association team . . . only other Houston player to win first-team honors as an underclassman was Elvin Hayes in 1966-67 . . .

After watching Drexler in rookie camp and the Los Angeles Summer League, Portland General Manager Stu Inman said, "He is learning to play in a more disciplined situation. There are a lot of good parts to his game but even those parts need to be redefined for him to be successful at the NBA level" . . .

Inman added, "Maybe Clyde's biggest adjustment will be learning to be free and confident in taking the 15-foot jump shot. But he should make that adjustment within a couple of months. He has the potential to be a very good all-around player. It's a matter of how quickly he assimilates principles of the Blazer system as to how productive he will be initially" . . .

PERSONAL — Drexler is single . . . after basketball he would like to be a banker and he already has worked three years in a Houston bank . . . he most admires priests and ministers . . . besides basketball, he enjoys watching football, boxing and baseball . . . in his spare time he enjoys sleeping, reading, playing chess, playing video games and playing golf . . .

Drexler's favorite musical group is Ash and Simpson . . . his favorite song is Endless Love . . . he enjoys summer as the best time of year and most enjoys traveling to Phoenix . . . his favorite book is Shogun and his favorite comedian is Eddie Murphy . . .

Drexler follows a physical fitness program that includes lifting weights, running and calisthenics all year long . . . he most would like to meet Lola Falana . . . his most memorable moment was the semifinal game against Louisville in his junior season . . .

Drexler majored in finance in college and plans to take summer courses to earn his degree . . . he needs only about 25 hours to graduate.

HENRY WEINHARD

Henry Weinhard
Brewmaster, No. 1, 5'10", 171 lbs.
Born: 1830, Wurtemburg, Germany
High School: Wurtemburg Area
College: Brewers apprentice

At the age of 22, and after years of apprenticeship, a talented Henry Weinhard decided he was ready for the major leagues. Upon surveying his options, Henry determined the best opportunity for a rookie such as him was in America.

In 1852 he came to the United States and immediately found a berth with the brewers in Cincinati, Ohio. He spent four years with this team polishing his skills.

As a free agent, he was intrigued by reports concerning bright openings on the Pacific coast. So early in 1856 he made the long voyage, via the isthmus, to the far west and hooked up with a Vancouver, Washington organization where he plied his trade for six months.

He then felt the time was right to make his move, so, in 1856, he established his own brewery near Fort Vancouver. It wasn't long before soldiers, loggers and trappers of the area became very big Henry Weinhard fans.

In 1860 he moved his operations to its present location on Burnside in Portland. From then on, Henry chalked up an enviable record of victories. He kept acquiring more equipment and adding more facilities to constantly increase his output while stubbornly maintaining the high level of excellence he had become known for. Everywhere along the coast Weinhard's beer was recognized as unsurpassed by any other native product.

Henry's experience and foresight prompted him to locate in Portland because he realized this area would eventually become the primary source of premium brewing ingredients in the United States. Time has proven him right.

Rare, two-row malting barley, for example, is grown in very few areas of the country, but Oregon's Klamath Basin is the most prominent. And the unique Cascade hops — which Henry recognized as being equal if not superior to the exalted Hallertau hop of Bavaria are raised here in Oregon.

Today, two labels continue in the proud, teutonic tradition set forth by Henry Weinhard 124 years ago. The perennial hometown favorite, Blitz-Weinhard, and the handmade, ultra-premium that is his namesake, Henry Weinhard's Private Reserve.

Trailblazer fans can expect a lot of good things from both of them this season. Again.

TOM PIOTROWSKI

Tom Piotrowski, 7-1 center from LaSalle, was Portland's third-round selection and 62nd selection overall in the 1983 College draft . . . in four years at LaSalle he averaged 8.7 points and 4.2 rebounds a game while shooting .494 from the floor and .701 from the foul line . . .

In his senior season he averaged 10.4 points and 5.4 rebounds a game while shooting .498 and .743 . . . when informed that he was a choice of Portland, Piotrowski said, "I am ecstatic about being selected. I didn't have much of an inkling I would go that high in the draft" . . . after watching Piotrowski in rookie camp and in the Los Angeles summer League, Portland General Manager Stu Inman said:

"We got our first real look at him in the tryout camp in Chicago. His progress since then has been highly significant. We would have to nurse him a little but he's a quick-learning kid. He could play some type of role by the end of the season. Right now he could be a big force on offense."

TIM DUNHAM

Tim Dunham, 6-2 guard from Chaminade in Honolulu, was a fourth-round draft choice in 1983, the 85th selection overall . . . despite his height, he survived rookie camp and the Los Angeles Summer League to return to fall camp . . .

In two seasons at Chaminade, Dunham averaged 20.4 points a game while shooting .533 from the floor and .826 at the foul line . . . as a senior, Dunham averaged 22.7 points a game while shooting .549 from the floor and .849 at the foul line . . . he was Chaminade's top scorer in 27 games . . . and he won NAIA first-team All America honors . . . he scored 18 points in Chaminade's stunning upset last season of Virginia with Ralph Sampson . . .

Portland General Manager Stu Inman said of Dunham, "A great athlete. At this stage of the game he is much more of an offensive player than a defensive player but he has shown some improvement on defense. He's a long shot but crazy things can happen in fall camp."

JOHN SMITH

A true long shot who reported to the Portland rookie camp last July was John Smith. 6-4 guard from the University of Arizona . . . but Smith impressed coaches enough to advance to the Southern California Summer League, then impressed them enough again to advance to fall training camp . . .

Smith, 24, could be a late bloomer . . . he played at Arizona from 1977-78 through 1980-81 and did not produce any particularly impressive statistics . . . but with the Reno Bighorns in the Continental Basketball Association last season, he was impressive . . . he averaged 21.1 points a game to rank 19th in the league . . . he was fifth in the CBA in steals with 2.1 a contest and seventh in assists with a 6.0 average . . . he shot .514 from the floor and .758 at the foul line . . .

As training camp approached, Portland General Manager Stu Inman said of Smith, "He had a very good year last year, playing as a lead guard. He had a great rookie camp, then was hampered by minor injuries in Los Angeles. We like his defense, and he's a good open-court shooter. He is a very disciplined player who can fit in well with a Jack Ramsay system" . . .

PORTLAND ATTENDANCE

Portland ended its 1982-83 campaign with its 271st consecutive sellout in regular-season and playoff action in Memorial Coliseum.

This is an all-time National Basketball Association record.

The Trail Blazers were sold out for the entire season for the sixth straight time.

Final regular-season attendance for 1982-83 was 519,306.

Total regular-season attendance for Portland's first 531 games in 13 National Basketball Association seasons was 5,656,500 — an average of 10,653 a game.

On the road last season the Blazers played before 393,466 fans in 41 games — an average of 9,597 a contest.

Closed-circuit telecasts at the Paramount Theatre last season drew 52,275 fans for 30 games — an average of 1,743 a contest.

We'd like to thank everyone who helped make us #1.

And that's a lot of "thank-you's."

Oregon Dental Service is the prepaid dental plan most preferred by Oregon's employers, workers and dentists.

The reason? Simple. No other prepaid dental plan delivers as much dental care for the group dental dollar.

Here's how an ODS dental plan can benefit you.

"HOLD HARMLESS" PROTECTION

Our unique relationship with 95% of Oregon's dentists guarantees that dental fees will not exceed pre-established limits. That's your guarantee against an unexpected dental bill.

No other dental plan can make this claim.

NO CLAIM FORMS

With ODS, dental claims are submitted directly to us. So there is no costly, time-consuming paperwork for either the employer or the employee.

All claims are handled quickly and accurately. This makes ODS plans easy to administer. And leaves more time for the real business at hand. Your business.

COST CONTAINMENT

ODS, in close cooperation with the Oregon dental profession, has worked to contain the costs of dental care. As a result, our unique cost containment features can save you an average of 6 to 7% of the cost of the identical claim handled by another carrier.

GO WITH #1

To establish a dental plan for your group, or to improve upon your present plan, check up with Oregon Dental Service.

Thank you.

TAKE STEINFELD'S TO COURT.

Or to a picnic.
Or even out to your back yard.
Take Steinfeld's anywhere you want to enjoy a great hometown, homegrown taste.
Because, for over 60 years, Steinfeld's has been making a long line of quality pickles, sauerkraut, and relish.

All with the taste, zest, and crunch that brings the fans to their feet.
And has made Steinfeld's the winning team.
But you be the judge.

Steinfeld's® WESTERN ACRES

The picture of health.

The joining of these two major forces in Oregon health care has set the stage for an important and very necessary adaptation.

By pooling our financial and human resources, while eliminating redundant services and physical facilities, we've laid the groundwork for an exceptionally trim, financially sound organization.

Together, as Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Oregon, we provide over 740,000 subscribers with optimal medical care coverage at absolute minimal operating costs.

RADIO/TELEVISION

BLAZER RADIO

The Blazers have the largest radio network in the NBA, reaching all of Oregon plus Hawaii. The Blazers initiated this year broadcasts via satellite. The Blazers are first professional sports team to deliver its games via satellite.

BILL SCHONELY

Broadcasting Portland Trail Blazers' games, home and road, for the 14th straight season is Bill Schonely, an original with the club. In his first 11 seasons, Schonely missed only two games during regular-season or playoff action. He was suffering from walking pneumonia. He also missed the 1980 pre-season schedule while recovering from a heart attack suffered during the summer in Pendleton in the sagebrush country of eastern Oregon. His recovery was rapid, as befits a former U.S. marine. Schonely made the battle cry of "Rip City" — for a perfect basketball shot — famous in Portland. He came to the Rose City after seven years as sports director of KVI radio in Seattle. He also announced action for the Oakland Seals of the National Hockey League and the Seattle Pilots of the American Baseball League.

DAVE TWARDZIK

Director of Community Relations for the Portland Trail Blazers is former player Dave Twardzik, who also will be color commentator on the Trail Blazer radio network and the Paramount Theater. Twardzik, in his four seasons with Portland, shot .552 from the field, the fifth-best record among active players in the National Basketball Association. Twardzik, a 6-1 guard from Old Dominion, led Portland in assists in his last active season with 273 and averaged 8.5 points a game, just a shade below his career average of 9.5. Twardzik was drafted by Portland in 1972 in the second round but played four seasons with the Virginia Squires of the American Basketball Association before joining the Blazers. Twardzik attends many youth camps, conducts clinics and visits network radio stations.

TELEVISION

20 road games will be aired live on KOIN-TV, Channel 6, the CBS affiliate station in Portland. Additionally, many of the games will be aired on the Blazer new statewide television network.

STEVE JONES

Steve Jones is a talented and versatile announcer. Five years ago, Jones started with the Blazers as a color analyst on radio, teaming with Bill Schonely. Two years later, he advanced to hosting "Blazer Sports Talk," which quickly became the most listened to talk show in the state. This year, Jones is advancing again — this time to being the play-by-play announcer on the Blazer televised games on KOIN-TV and Blazer cable. Jones will continue to host "Blazer Sports Talk," as well as do color commentary work for NBA games on USA Cable Network. Jones was a basketball star at Portland's Franklin High School and at University of Oregon. He played eight years in the ABA, finishing his pro career with the Blazers in 1975-76.

LARRY STEELE

Serving as color commentator on road telecasts and home cablecasts is Larry Steele. This is Steele's fourth season behind the Blazer microphones. Larry Steele played more games (610) for Portland than any other player. Steele, drafted in the third round from Kentucky in 1971, played both guard and forward for the Blazers until suffering a knee injury in Chicago in November of 1979. He never played again. Steele had a career average of 8.2 points a game, shooting .483 from the field and .796 from the foul line. He is the third-highest scorer in Portland history with 4,999 points, is second in assists with 1,719. He also is the all-time leader in personal fouls with 1,832, almost 600 more than any other Blazer, and in disqualifications because of personals with 45, more than twice the total of any other Portland player.

ALL TIMES ARE PORTLAND TIMES

BLAZER SPORTS TALK RADIO SHOW

Starting 90 minutes before each Blazer game is Blazer Sports Talk hosted by Steve Jones. Blazer Sports Talk is aired on KEX in Portland and other radio stations throughout the state. A Special Edition of Blazer Sports Talk is aired on Mondays during the season.

THE FOX THEATRE—BLAZER CLOSED CIRCUIT

The Portland Trail Blazers will show the majority of the 1983-84 home games on closed-circuit television at the Fox Theatre. Because of limited availability of the theatre, only 31 games will be shown at the Fox. This will be the seventh season for closed-circuit telecasts. The first six years of closed circuit telecasts were at the Paramount Theatre, now being renovated by the city as a performing arts center.

BLAZER PAY TELEVISION

Last year, the Blazers took their first step into pay television. ON-TV, the subscription television service, aired five Blazer home games. This year, Storer Metro Cable and North Willamette Telecom will join ON-TV carrying 12 Blazer home games on a pay television basis. Additionally, Storer and North Willamette will carry the Blazer telecasts of the state high school football and basketball championships.
